LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

We acknowledge that we are in the territory of the Anishinaabe peoples of northwestern Ontario. We work and live on the lands of Fort William First Nation, a signatory to the Robinson-Superior Treaty of 1850. We honour their enduring connection to this land and commit to working together for a sustainable future.

We also recognize that our regional campuses cross over multiple traditional and Treaty Territories, the historical contributions of Métis People, and that our students come to study from all over Turtle Island.

As part of the colonial history of Canada, non-Indigenous peoples have derived benefits from what the Truth and Reconciliation Commission defines as "cultural genocide" of Indigenous peoples in this country. We embrace our role and responsibilities in a national reconciliation process and acknowledge that we are accountable for this tragic history. At Confederation College, we are working to address injustices against Indigenous peoples and to honour our relationships with communities.

Why Confederation College

BOOZHOO! AANIIN! I am Wendy Landry, the VP of Indigenous Relations here at Confederation College, and I am Anishnaabe Kwe from Red Rock Indian Band on Lake Helen just outside of Nipigon, Ontario. I am honoured to welcome you to our vibrant and inclusive College community. I am also a graduate of Confederation, and I remember well my journey from my hometown to the city to study at Confederation. At Confederation College, we recognize and celebrate the rich diversity of Indigenous cultures, traditions, and knowledge. Our campus is not just a place of learning; it's a space where students can feel at home, nurture their identities, and walk in two worlds with confidence and pride.

From the Indigenous Learning Outcomes (ILO) incorporated into our programs, to dedicated support services like Apiwin (our Indigenous Student Lounge), we aim to provide holistic and wraparound services to enhance your educational experience.

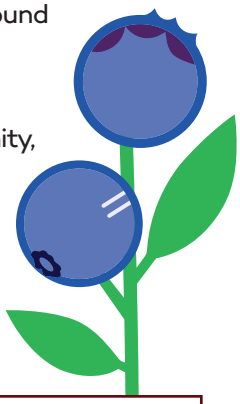

We are committed to supporting your success and helping you achieve your dreams while staying true to your roots. Your educational journey impacts you, your family, and your community, and we are here to ensure that experience is successful.

This journey is more than a diploma or degree; it is about growing as an individual, strengthening your connection to culture, and becoming a leader who can make a positive impact. I wish you a successful and memorable time at Confederation College.

Thank you for considering Confederation College as your next step in education.

Miigwetch,

Wendy Landry

Indigenous Community Advocacy – Naadaamaagewin [EDJ]

Confederation College's Indigenous Community Advocacy: Naadaamaagewin program is a two-year transformative journey aimed at empowering individuals committed to championing Indigenous justice and self-determination. This program profoundly emphasizes Indigenous law and advocacy, fostering a deep understanding of Indigenous knowledge systems and ethical frameworks.

Through an immersive curriculum, students amplify voices within Indigenous communities to raise awareness and enhance their capacity for self-governance. By centering Indigenous well-being and nationhood, graduates emerge equipped with the tools to craft innovative solutions for community challenges.

This program equips students with the skills to navigate complex political, social, and cultural landscapes, fostering meaningful dialogue on Indigenous and Canadian relations. Graduates are poised to initiate advocacy campaigns and lead community-based projects that contribute to the ongoing journey of truth and reconciliation. Join us in shaping a future where Indigenous communities thrive with autonomy and dignity.

Apprenticeship Programs

There are more than 140 skilled occupations that can be practiced through Ontario's apprenticeship training system. Carpenters, cooks, electricians, millwrights, motive power technicians, and welders are all professions that can be defined as "skilled trades", and represent occupations that are integral to the function of the regional and provincial economies.

Apprentices learn a skilled occupation by combining in-school training courses with paid on-the-job training. About 90 percent of apprenticeship training is provided in the workplace by an employer, while the remainder is delivered in a classroom setting at a training delivery agent like Confederation College.

HOW TO BECOME AN APPRENTICE:

1 Find an employer or union who is willing to sponsor or train you

2 Register with Skilled Trades Ontario and obtain a Registered Training Agreement

3 Gain work experience as a registered apprentice and attend in-class training when a seat offer is presented by the Ministry of Labour, Immigration, Training and Skills Development (MLITSD)

Once registered with Skilled Trades Ontario (STO), the Ministry of Labour, Immigration, Training and Skills Development (MLITSD) will communicate when apprentices are eligible for in-class training (levels 1,2 or 3). You must be a registered apprentice to receive a seat offer and enrol in apprenticeship level training at Confederation College.

Indigenous Student Services – APIWIN

Located in the heart of the Shuniah building at Confederation College, the Indigenous student lounge, named APIWIN, meaning 'a place to sit,' is a welcoming environment for Indigenous students to gather, study, and participate in a variety of social, academic, and culturally based programs and events.

Indigenous Student Services "supports Indigenous students in their academic, personal, transitional, social and cultural success.The dedicated Indigenous Student Advisors, Counsellor and Elder help students transition to and through college life by providing support and connections within the college and community, both in-person and virtually.

Oshki Anishnawbeg Student Association (OASA) means "New Aboriginal People Student Association." OASA is an Indigenous-based student association that is committed to building relationships with Indigenous and non-Indigenous students throughout Confederation College.

OASA's primary goals are to advocate for change, develop leadership and understand cultural issues within the community for the benefit of all students. Contact APIWIN to find out how to get involved or visit www.confederationcollege.ca/oasa.

Indigenous Student Advisors:
Our Indigenous Student Advisors (ISA) support students by building on their strengths, goals, and individual needs. They help students identify opportunities, develop strategies, and move through their academic journey with confidence. Our ISAs provide information, guidance, and connections to College departments and community resources.

SELF-IDENTIFY THROUGH OCAS OR APIWIN

Your voice matters!

AT CONFEDERATION COLLEGE WE ENCOURAGE INDIGENOUS LEARNERS TO SELF-IDENTIFY.

Why Self ID Matters

- Ensures the College is providing the right supports and services.
- Connects you to new and exciting opportunities.
- Gives you access to cultural programs, academic support, counselling and other services.
- Creates a stronger sense of belonging.
- Connects you with Indigenous staff, Elders, and community members.
- You can learn about scholarships and bursaries and receive support with the application process.
- Helps the College build on Indigenous students' strengths and experiences to better support their success.
- Strengthens learners' sense of community, connection, and culture.

We understand that self-identifying is a personal choice, but it can help you feel supported and connected during your time at Confederation College.

Indigenous Supports

Within a cultural and community context, the Indigenous Counsellor supports students in understanding the impact of mental, emotional, and spiritual health on learning. Counsellors create a safe and welcoming environment through a variety of methods that are culturally informed.

Student Success

Hello. My name is Joe Wark and I am the Indigenous Counsellor at Confederation College. I'm a lifelong resident of Thunder Bay and a proud father of two children. While my mom was a Lac Seul First Nation band member, I consider Thunder Bay to be my home community. I graduated from the Social Service Worker program at Confederation College and completed my Master of Social Work degree at Lakehead University. I am currently a PhD student in the School of Social Work at Memorial University. I have been working with youth and families since 2010 in a diverse range of settings including youth justice, mental health, substance misuse, and family counselling. As an author and researcher, I have published articles on Indigenous cultural values, complex trauma and parenting, and cross-cultural counselling. I am excited to contribute to the success of Indigenous students at Confederation College.

Elder Melissa Roberts

Melissa Roberts was born in Animki Wiikwedong (Thunder Bay) and has lived here her entire life. Her mother's people come from the area around Eastmain, Quebec; Ojibway in Cree territory. Her ancestors are historically documented as one of the first seven founding families with the fur trade in what was called Fort William.

As a maker of things and pollinator of ideas, Melissa can be found in Apiwin on Tuesdays helping to build relationships while sharing teachings and engaging in traditional crafting.

Recruitment

Our Indigenous Recruitment Officer is here to help – as your first point of contact until your first day of classes.

"When I first decided to apply to college I was extremely nervous. I didn't know what I wanted to do. The recruitment team helped put my mind at ease. They went through all the programs at my appointment and explained what I would learn, which made my decision easy and they even helped me apply that very day. I'm excited to start a new chapter in my life."
